

More Than a Map: How Government Agencies are Collaborating on Geographic Information For Better Public Services

June 19, 2008
Hyatt Regency
Sacramento, CA

Keynote Speaker – Eric Swanson

Director, Michigan Center for Geographic Information
Department of Information Technology

Eric Swanson is the Director of the Michigan Center for Geographic Information (MCGI) within the Department of Information Technology. He has served in this position since 1990.

Eric has developed the process and necessary business relationships to integrate the State's Geographic Information Technology (GIT) efforts resulting in consistent and accurate decision making tools being made available across state and local government. He has directed a multi-million investment of combined funding and staff resources from several state departments. Eric oversees statewide Geographic Information System (GIS) coordination and multi-agency participation in the development of the Michigan Geographic Framework and state government GIS initiatives.